

About

“I believe that photography saves happy memories from the past: I enjoy living in the present and trying to find the best moments from the past with all charming peculiarity” - Alexander Ivashkevich

Alexander Ivashkevich (born in 1960) is a professional theatre and film actor living in Tallinn, Estonia.

The artist's interest in fine art and photography was further instigated by his life-long career in dramatic theatre sphere. Photographer's attitude is rooted not only in the artist's desire to investigate personality, and even the mood of the model, but also in a determination to challenge the status quo.

Artistic, Psychological, Vintage Portraits, and Boudoir series - Alexander's photoshoots always create an exquisite interplay between such notions as gestures and expressions, model's inner world making public and dialogue with the artist and audience. During the photo sessions, models always have the opportunity not just to pose and to look attractively, but to explore previously unknown discoveries about their personalities and souls.

People who have posed to Ivashkevich often declare that this is one of the most aesthetic ways of psychotherapy.

Alexander has found his own special and easily recognizable style and his works became popular and are in great demand among fine art admirers.

Alexander Ivashkevich's works have been exhibited in Estonia as well as abroad and can also be found in private collections (USA, Holland, Russia, Sweden, Norway).
